Oral Presentation Resources

POD Network

Regarding conferences on pedagogy and networks, a good place to start is the POD (Professional and Organizational Development) Network in Higher Education http://www.podnetwork.org. You can join their listserv for frequent discussion of teaching and learning issues as related to faculty development http://listserv.nd.edu/archives/pod.html.

Select Publications

These books are available in the Center for Teaching library.

Web Resources

The McGraw Center for Teaching and Learning, Princeton University
http://www.princeton.edu/mcgraw
This website is a good resource for general tips on producing and performing a good presentation.

University of Hawaii, Teacher Resources
http://www.hawaii.edu/gened/oc/oc.htm
This website has a wealth of resources, including evaluations for presentations and the University of Hawaii’s rationale for the oral communication skills requirement for graduation.

LDPride.net
http://www.ldpride.net/learningstyles.MI.htm
This website provides an overview on Multiple Intelligences and different learning styles.