Faculty Learning Communities—Brown Bag
Faculty Learning Communities explore and share ideas about intriguing topics related to teaching and professional development. During the academic year these cross-disciplinary faculty led groups create their own agendas and consider relevant academic and popular media.
Join members of Iowa’s first FLC for a brown bag discussion about opportunities to participate in these communities of colleagues. Please bring your own lunch; we will provide water and cookies.
Wednesday, November 19th, 12:00-1:30 pm
University Capital Centre 2390, Exec Boardroom

The Write Stuff: Writing Assignments and Assessment
Fall Faculty Institute
Regardless of a student’s major or career path, clear and persuasive writing is an essential skill they must acquire and polish during college. This Faculty Institute will present strategies for creating and assessing writing assignments. We will present traditional approaches to writing instruction as well as two online tools, one of which was successfully piloted in a large-lecture course at Iowa.
Monday, November 24, 9:00 am-3:00 pm
Main Library 1140, TILE Classroom
Continental breakfast and lunch will be provided.
For applications and information, contact Jean Florman at Jean.Florman@iowa.edu. All faculty, including clinical faculty, are welcome to inquire and apply.
